Nobel Prize Dialogue - The Future We Want

In November 2025, the Nobel Prize Dialogue is coming to India for a special double event in Bengaluru and Mumbai, hosted in exclusive partnership with Tata Trusts - one of India's oldest philanthropic institutions. The Bengaluru event takes place on 3rd November and the Mumbai event follows on 5th November. The dialogue brings Nobel Prize laureates together with leading thinkers to explore ideas and challenges that matter to all of us.

With the theme 'The Future We Want', the India dialogues will reflect on how investment in knowledge, creativity, and young people can build a world of joy, wonder, and innovation that is more inclusive, sustainable, and equitable. These conversations will be grounded in India's rich intellectual tradition and will showcase the nation's emergence as a leading player on the global stage.

The events will feature Nobel Prize laureates David MacMillan (chemistry, 2021) and James Robinson (economic sciences, 2024), alongside renowned experts Tolullah Oni, Gagandeep Kang, Montek Singh Ahluwalia, and Kush Parmar. Each dialogue will explore pathways to a future shaped by shared values and informed by evidence.

Hosted by Nobel Prize Outreach in collaboration with Tata Trusts, Nobel Prize Dialogue India 2025 aims to foster open exchange, inspire the next generation, and deepen the connection between science and society. Tata Trusts' legacy of supporting ideas that shape society and foster progress make them an ideal collaborator for this landmark event. Their commitment to advancing equity, resilience, and shared prosperity reinforces the dialogue's aim - to foster open exchange, inspire the next generation, and deepen the connection between science and society.
