Kamrup's Eri Silk has a charm of its own with its value unparalleled. Just as on silk, likewise on cotton, the extra weft weaving technique where separate weft yarn, inserted into the warp on top of the main weft at the base, makes the products of this cluster unique. Coupled with a combination of natural dyes, products of this cluster are no less than heirloom pieces that would last a lifetime.

Gopalpur, a coastal village in Odisha, situated on the banks of Brahmani river, is one of the leading Tussar producing clusters in India. Fabrics are designed in tussar and gheechea and enhanced with an extra weft technique. Products are also made with different blends of tussar - tussar, tussar - eri and tussar - gheechea. One of the artisanal skills associated with Gopalpur craft is their use of hand spun and hand reeled yarns done mostly by the female artisans of the family.
